Vote Recount In Will County Sheriff Election Has Begun, Many Ballots Being Objected to

Since the last issue of the News-Bulletin two motions have been decided in the case of Alvah M. Weston et al. vs. Albert E. Markgraf by County Judge Ralph C. Austin.

The first motion was made by the attorneys for Albert E. Markgraf asking that they be allowed to offer evidence to rebut the evidence offered by the petitioners and the second motion was offered by Edward R. Nadelhoffer, who with David R. Anderson represent Alvah M. Weston. This motion was for a recount of the ballots of the county after having shown suspicion of fraud. Mr. Markgraf is represented in court by William C. Mooney, Frank J. Wise, Robert W. Martin and Thomas F. Donovan.

The first motion offered by Robert W. Martin was argued first and in the argument Mr. Martin said the defense had a right to offer evidence in this case and cited several Supreme Court rulings substantiating his statements.

Mr. Anderson answered Mr. Martin's argument and said the defense was entitled to offer evidence but that until the petitioners had rested their case they could not and as the petitioners were asking to have the ballots offered as further evidence to prove their statements as facts that this was not the time but that later in the case they would have the opportunity.

Judge Austin's opinion on this motion was that it was not the time to offer rebut evidence and would not allow the motion.

The second motion asking for a recount of the county was then taken up and the attorneys for Alvah M. Weston et al. waived their opening argument but gave the attorneys for Markgraf the cases they were to present to the court to look up. Mr. Martin went into detail step by step as to the evidence offered and said there was less for the court to grant a recount on now than when the original petition was filed in so far as the petitioners had failed to prove their allegations. He read the testimony of David A. Martin and picked out the flaws as they appeared to him. He said that Mr. Martin was signing a petition on information and belief that he would not have signed under oath.

Mr. Martin read the testimony of the witness as to the general allegations in the petition and always the answer was "no". However, it was put to him in the way of "by your own personal knowledge do you know that crosses were erased or blurred?" Mr. Martin said that either William J. Bolton or Frank Pennuto was not telling the truth because one testified that William "Spike" Laughran said "We will win this election by fair means or foul" and the other said "We will win this election or steal it." He also said the testimony of William J. Bolton and Herbert Teuffer was not the same and that one of them was not telling the truth as to the conditions that existed at the first precinct.

Mr. Martin said that there were only four voted in the 14th precinct that could be rejected and that they would be ejected pro rata to the count of the precinct. In the 25th precinct Mr. Martin said the only thing wrong was that the booths were not in the same room and two votes had been objected to.

Edward R. Nadelhoffer answered Mr. Martin with the law end of the argument and cited several cases of the Supreme Court rulings pertaining to the order for a recount. He also gave his version of the weight of the evidence.

David R. Anderson then answered Mr. Martin in summing up the evidence and the reason of asking for a recount. Mr. Anderson said that Mr. Meade's testimony about Robert Haley, a judge in the 14th precinct, as to saying "It makes no difference we are voting them all today" is proven out by the testimony of Chas. E. Spears when he said there were 388 voted there who were not registered on the registration books. Several persons who voted at the 14th precinct should have voted at the 23rd precinct and had the election officials been checking their poll books they would not have been registered or had the election judges asked them their address they would have then known they were not voters there.

Mr. Anderson said Mr. Bolton and Mr. Pennuto have not said the same words when relating what Mr. Laughran had said but that they had been truthful and that it meant the same. Mr. Anderson said there is not testimony as damaging as a pre-arranged testimony. He gave an illustration by saying if someone was shot in the Court Room no two men would see the shooting in the same way.

Roadhouse Loss Set at $30,000

The roadhouse fire which destroyed the road house at the Will-Cook county line on the Lincoln highway last Thursday morning claimed the life of Jesse McCanna aged 58 who was trapped in the second story of the burning structure. He was seen at a window calling for help when the entire side of the building he was in suddenly caved in throwing him into a veritable bed of fire. He is said to be survived by a sister. Eight police dogs are also said to have perished in the fire. It is said that the east and north side of the building and a long porch on the north side were soaked with oil on the outside and fired. The loss is said to be about $30,000 with no insurance. A party from Indiana by the name of Francis is said to have been the owner of the property.

Big Jubilee Fest To Celebrate S. W. Highway

The Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce will hold a big jubilee fest at the Orland High School Auditorium Saturday night, April 16th in celebration of the definite announcement of the construction of the new super Southwest highway thru Oak Lawn, Worth, Chicago Ridge, Palos Park and Orland to the Will and Cook county line.

President Anton Cermak of the Cook county board, Major Quinlan Cook County Supt., of highways as well as other road officials will be present and take part in an elaborate program. There will be special entertainment features followed by dancing. A cordial invitation is extended to nearby towns to attend this jollyfication. At this time it is also planned to make the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce a permanent institution.

Mokena M. E. to Give Pageant

The Mokena M. E. church announces the presentation of "The Rock" or "The Story of Peter", a religious pageant of much beauty and significance, to be given in the St. John's church parlors on Tuesday evening, April 19th at 8 p. m. This date is a slight change from that which was announced in last week's News-Bulletin, due to the desire to fit various programs from both the St. John's and M. E. congregations, so that both churches and all the community might have advantage of every program. Thru the very fine co-operation and the courtesy of the Don C. Hall Co., under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church their play has been postponed and other announcement will be made concerning their program.

The added advantage of April 19th for the Religious Pageant is the nearness to the Easter Spirit, into which the pageant fits.

The pageant is directed by Miss Viola Hall. The leading characters follow:

Simon-Peter.....Wm. N. Lathrop
Adina, Peter's Wife.....Dolly Hensel
Deborah, Adina's Mother.....
Ucal, Adina's Uncle.....
.....Clyde Knudson
Mary of Magdala.....Miss Viola Hall
A Hebrew Doctor.....Geo. Koeller, Jr.
And Minor Characters.

There will be appropriate scenery giving the Oriental atmosphere and background to the play. The group of players have been working very hard to bring this fine Bible message to the community. It is suited to all creeds and denominations, and all people are invited to help make the evening the finest success.

A free-will offering will be taken to cover the expenses of the production; the author of the pageant has decreed that it will never be charged for, but that a free-will offering may be taken. Any proceeds above the cost of production, will go into the work of the M. E. Sunday School.

Gas and Booze Don't Mix Safely

That booze and gasoline will not mix safely was shown at Tinley in two instances the past week. Monday night a car with several men in it said to have been from Indiana, ran into a telephone pole at Goesselville north of Tinley Park. The car was smashed and the men were injured. It is said the driver was under the influence of liquor.

Tuesday afternoon a high powered car with two men and two women in it rammed into the railing on the concrete bridge across the drainage ditch north of Tinley Park when the driver lost control of the car. Just before reaching the bridge the car zig zagged across the street and ran head on against the edge of the bridge railing with such force that the car rebounded and was hurled against the railing on the opposite side of the bridge. The car was completely wrecked. Two men in the front seat were badly cut by the broken glass. Two women in the back seat were also cut by broken glass but not seriously. A big crowd gathered and the injured men were picked up out of the pile of junk and word was sent for Dr. Ickstadt to come. Before Officer F. Schmiedeknecht could get on the scene the men and two women suddenly got up and started hiking across the field. The crowd gave chase and soon caught the men but the women were better runners. They were lodged in the Tinley jail and turned over to the county highway police and taken to Blue Island where they were booked and placed under $2000 bonds which they turned in. The men were taken to the St. Francis hospital where Dr. Ickstadt took 18 stitches in one man's head and 6 stitches in the second one's head. It is said the whole outfit was drunk at the time of the accident. They were from South Chicago. Their case comes up in Blue Island Monday afternoon.

Jacob Bauch of Frankfort found Dead in Bed

Jacob Bauch, life long resident of Frankfort township, was found dead in bed at his home in the village of Frankfort last Saturday by Chas. Haass. Not seeing Mr. Bauch about his home, Mr. Haass, a neighbor went over to see what the reason was and found Mr. Bauch lying in bed apparently dead. Dr. Hedges was summoned and found that Mr. Bauch had been dead for sometime. Mr. Bauch had not been well for sometime, but his condition was not thought to be as serious as it finally proved to be. Mr. Bauch was ill with the grip for sometime.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from his home. Burial in Pleasant Hill cemetery, Rev. Gerhold officiating. Jacob Bauch was born Feb. 2 1864 on the Bauch farm southeast of town near Cook County line retiring from the farm about 18 years ago, coming to town with his brother Will and sister Mary. His brother Will died several years ago and his sister Mary died last August after being an invalid for many years. Jake leaves to mourn him one brother, George of Chicago and many other friends and relatives. He was Janitor for the M. E. Church for several years.

New Lenox Has Quiet Election

The republican ticket in New Lenox township was unopposed and Fred Francis was returned to the county board as supervisor. He received 133 votes. Thomas Cooper was elected constable, polling 131 votes, and C. F. Haley was chosen school trustee, receiving 132 votes.

Wm. Funk In Tinley Park Mayoralty Race

The coming village election at Tinley Park will be a tame one according to present indications. John C. Andres the present mayor is not going to be a candidate for re-election, so William Funk has his hat in the ring for the office without any opposition.

Road Issue Wins In Frankfort

The Frankfort township election held last Tuesday was a tame affair. Emil P. Krapp was elected school trustee and John Frisch was elected constable without opposition. A hard road proposition called for the building of five separate pieces of road in Frankfort township on a special tax of 40 cents on each $100 assessed valuation for a period of five years, carried with a slight amount of opposition.

Bettenhausen Is Re-elected Sup. of Green Garden

Wm. C. Bettenhausen was re-elected supervisor from Green Garden township, defeating his republican adversary, Fred L. Hasenjaeger, 218 to 126. George Bettenhausen was elected school trustee, polling 157 votes.

Hot Election Coming

The coming village election in Mokena promises to be a red hot affair with two hotly contested tickets. The big fight will center on aldermen. On the village ticket W. R. Lynk, Harvey Reab and Herman Schweser are up for re-election. Opposing them on the people's ticket are Paul Roessner, Edward Marti and August Werner. George J. Hacken is up for re-election as mayor on the village ticket without any opposition. The election will be on Tuesday, April 19th and will be held at the Mokena village hall. The polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Celebrate Tinley Pastor's Silver Wedding

The Silver wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Albert Buddenhagen was celebrated Saturday evening by a surprise party arranged by the Ladies of the Zion Lutheran church. They were presented with a silver service.

On Monday evening at 6 o'clock dinner was served in the parsonage the guests being pastor associates of Rev. Mr. Buddenhagen. The dining table was artistically decorated in honor of the silver wedding with touches of silver among Easter lilies and rose place cards. Yellow centered daisies were favors and worn in the laps of the coats of the guests. There were silver and white streamers from the chandeliers and a large wedding cake adorned the center of the table. Covers were laid for sixteen guests. The C. K. Caterers had charge of the dinner.

Some Want Roads, Some don't at Tinley

Last Monday night the Tinley Park village board meeting was enlivened when a large number of residents appeared and complained about impassable streets along their properties. The village will not be able to carry out all the improvements asked for due to lack of the necessary funds.

On the other hand Tinley Park has a case where a number of residents are seeking to help the village in the street question by offering to concrete the street in front of their properties at their own expense, but after agreeing to do so a number of the residents on that same street are now fighting the matter in court. The street in question is Kirehen street. Last Wednesday the case came up for a hearing in the county court in Chicago.

The judge has taken the case under advisement. During the trial, one of the objectors testified that the street in question is an alley.

The objecting side contend the proposed improvement will cost too much, but by fighting the case they will make it more expensive for all court costs will have to be paid by them in addition to their own attorney fees. There were some flaws in the minutes of the board of local improvements but they were not the fault of the clerk for he had written the minutes as outlined by the engineers. If the case were now settled the cost of the improvement will be more than at first estimated it is said and if the case is continued it will still be more. The advocates of the improvement in question say they have gone too far in the matter now and will see it thru.

No Official Confirmation of Routing of 51

The past week reports have it that route 51 will go via the original survey from Andres thru the village of Frankfort north to Justus on Keane Avenue, so that the fight put up by Mokena to have route 51 located on Wolf road has been lost, but there has been no official confirmation of these reports from Springfield. It is understood that a threat has emanated from the Frankfort road boosters that if route 51 were located on Wolf road they would immediately get out an injunction against the state highway department to restrain them from building the highway on the Wolf Road. In the meantime the offices of the highway department as well as the office of the governor are still being bombarded with resolutions and petitions from northern Illinois Wolf Road boosters. Cobb county especially is vitally interested in Wolf Road. Another report has it that if Route 51 is not located on Wolf Road, that this highway will be paved for six miles from the Lincoln highway north on thru Mokena to connect with the Southwest Highway at the Will and Cook county line. There is no official confirmation of this report.

After she sits and fas thru dat dere show, she'll pat you all on de back, 'cause de ladies takes derr parts mighty good like and youah mother-in-law will feel just as if she done been down a visitin' de home folks in old Alabama! Date April 22-23.

Don't forget the BIG FREE Basket to be given by the Tinley Park A. & P. store on the night of April 22nd.

George Schreiber registers the first flowers of the season for he picked a bouquet of violets last week in his garden.

Last week Wednesday a large delegation of property owners under the leadership of Bert Fulton, attended the Better Roads meeting held in the Sherman hotel under the state highway department. Congressman at large Rathbone was present and other state road men in a hearing for the most important roads improvement. A hearing on Route 53, the route the Tinley Parkers are interested in was deferred until a later date. All present possible should be brought to bear that the proposed road No. 53 be developed at an early date. At present 167th street is almost impassable and is like the "Rocky Road to Dublin". Somebody said route 53 was to be a super highway from Harvey on the south to Wisconsin on the north and would be electrically lighted. It seems too good to be true. Here is hoping the little daughter of Mrs. Ella Schoeneck who has been in quarantine with scarlet fever is much better.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Stelter, Mr. and Mrs. Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Fahrholz and Anna Brietharth were the guests of Robert Meisenger in Forest Park Sunday.

Napoleon Bonaparte

(Part III)

FOR years Europe crouched cringing and helpless at Napoleon's feet. The British bulldog snarled unconquered defiance and the Man of Destiny was wise enough to leave Great Britain alone. So England continued to stand as the one obstacle between the Corsican and the rule of the whole world. Yet Europe, though cowed, waited patiently for a chance to avenge itself of its tyrant. And that chance came in 1812.

Russia broke certain clauses in her treaty with France, and in May, 1812, Napoleon declared war on her. With 700,000 men he began his invasion. Barely 300,000 Russians opposed the advancing French hosts, but their tactics were unexpected. Avoiding a general engagement wherever possible, the Russians continually fell back before Napoleon's advance, wasting the country they passed through so that the pursuing French found neither provisions nor fuel.

Now and then—at Borodino and elsewhere—the French caught up with their fleeing enemies and won decisive victories, though at great cost. Following out tactics similar to those he had used successfully against Prussia and Austria, Napoleon struck straight at Russia's heart by marching on Moscow. He arrived there on September 15, to find the city deserted and in flames. The patriotic Russians had sacrificed home, property and wealth in order to block the advance and mar the conquest of their hated foe. Napoleon could pursue the retreating patriots no further over a desolate territory. His mighty army of 700,000 had dwindled to 120,000. So he ordered a retreat.

The merciless northern winter was setting in. The country was stripped of provisions. Bands of mounted Cossacks harassed the diseased, starving, half-frozen soldiers. Of all the vast army of invasion barely 25,000 reached France alive. Napoleon had, long before this, left his army, hurried to Paris and ordered a conscription of recruits to press the war. But his luck was gone. The "chance" for which ten beaten nations had waited so long had at last come. The climber had stumbled. The invincible general had been beaten. France's unbroken triumph had been turned into defeat. All Europe was roused. The Russian disaster had proven that Napoleon was only mortal. His name lost its terror.

An alliance was formed by Russia, England, Prussia, Sweden and Spain, and in 1813 they massed an army near the Elbe. Napoleon had 350,000 soldiers in Germany. For months he beat the allies in battle after battle, and at last forced them to a truce. They took advantage of this armistice to persuade Austria to join their league. Then at the truce's end, the united armies concentrated at Dresden. There he again routed them. But Napoleon's army was so weakened by the campaign that he was forced to fall back on Leipzig, where the allies hemmed him in. And there, in October, 1813, "the Battle of the Nations" was fought. Napoleon was beaten. Refusing to see that his star had set, he returned to Paris and ordered 300,000 recruits raised.

The allies entered France, and there a second campaign—this time on French soil—was waged. From January to March, 1814, Napoleon once more beat the invaders at very point. But Wellington, with an English army, was advancing on Paris from the south, and force of numbers proved too much for the Corsican.

The veterans who had won him so many victories were dead. Their places were taken by raw recruits. His best generals, too, were gone. The men to whom his name had been a slogan of success were replaced by a generation weary of war. On March 30 Paris was captured by the allies, and the populace hailed the invading armies as deliverers. Talleyrand, Fouché and other diplomats made great by Napoleon, deserted him and went over to the enemy.

France was worn out. For 17 years Napoleon had paralyzed trade and home life by dragging off to war the young men of the nation. Taxes had been heavy. Coming as it did on top of the horrors of the revolution, Napoleon's rule had nearly wrecked the country. For over a decade he had turned all Europe into an armed camp; had changed pastures into battle fields; had sacked and devastated populous districts, and slain hundreds of thousands of men who should have been helping their countries' progress. With iron hand he had swayed the destinies of the continent, changed its map and crushed patriotism and national independence everywhere save in France. Europe loathed him. France was tired of him and tired of fighting.

The emperor had sense enough to see this, and abdicated in favor of his son. This compromise the allies would not accept. They packed their former conqueror off to exile on the island of Elba and installed Louis XVIII (younger brother of the be-headed Louis XVI) on the French throne. Then Europe rested from its long era of terror and bloodshed.

But the respite was brief. The most dramatic events in the Corsican's career were still to be enacted.

Nervous Indigestion, Loss of Sleep and Run-down Condition, Causes Well-known Chicago Man Much Suffering. Says Tanlac Rescued Him

M. B. Philip, well-to-do property owner, perhaps better known as President of Carpenters Union No. 62, living at 6915 Stewart Avenue, Chicago, says: "When I began taking Tanlac I was always tired, and suffering from loss of sleep. My stomach was so upset that I couldn't eat without suffering from indigestion."

"I followed the advice of a friend and began taking Tanlac. It lived up to its reputation and fulfilled all promises. Quickly my old strength returned. I began to have a great appetite and every night I sleep soundly. Tanlac certainly put me on my feet, and gave me better health and at every opportunity I recommend it to friends and members of my union."

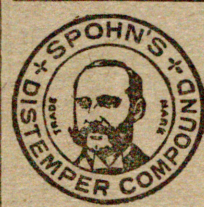

Tanlac usually banishes pain, conquers ailments and builds up strength. It relieves the system of poison caused by constipation and sluggish liver. It is Nature's own remedy made from roots, barks and herbs according to the Tanlac formula.

Banish sickness from your life and enjoy the benefits of strength and golden health. Begin taking Tanlac. The first bottle brings results that will surprise you. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today! More than 40 million bottles sold.

HELPFUL HINTS

Rubbers with leaky heels are worse than useless. Cut out the heel making a sandal rubber.

Rainy days are good days to do the odd things which we have put off for a more convenient season, as on such days we are less likely to be interrupted or there is less desire to go outside.

Looking over boxes, rearranging drawers and closets, looking up the articles in magazines, mending and all sorts of duties which we have slighted may be attended to on a rainy day.

When there are growing children in the house there is nothing more helpful than a scrapbook. Mother may get things cut out and assembled and the young folks will like to do the pasting. One such scrapbook may be made of authors' pictures, leaving a space to write in a short history of his life and works. Any interesting clippings will find a place in this book, which may be handed down to the next group of children to enjoy. Knowledge gained in this way in youth will never leave them. Very young children may have their minds stored with valuable knowledge without the effort of study. The pictures of famous people can be learned as easily as those of other pictures.

When entertaining for a children's party, get a box of animal crackers and after dipping some in chocolate and others in fondant of different colors, stand them up on salted crackers to dry. These will delight little people and there is nothing harmful in such refreshments.

When out of cake put delicate crackers together with frosting in which chopped raisins and nuts are added. They are sufficiently sweet to be satisfying with a cup of tea.

When troubled with rats put unslaked lime around their runways. Once burned they avoid that place again.

Dampen slightly the brush of the carpet sweeper; this will take up lint and save the dust that will rise from using the sweeper.

One of the first things necessary for a woman to learn who does the buying for a family, is to regulate her wants to fit her purse. It develops self-denial to confine herself to the needs of her family and refuse to buy attractive delicacies which she knows she cannot afford.

Perhaps some day we will become as progressive as our oriental brothers who pay their physicians to keep them well.

A leak in the wash boiler may be temporarily stopped by covering with a little corn meal and water. The corn meal will swell and fill the holes. Flour and water can be used in the same way—bake it in.

Seasonable Recipes.

A little care in the selection and arrangement of food will make a common dish something worth while.

Sweet Omelet.—Separate the whites and yolks of the eggs, using four, six or eight, according to the size of the family and appetite. Beat well, season with salt and a dash of cayenne, add as many tablespoonfuls of cold water as there are eggs. Separate the whites and yolks, beating the whites until stiff and the yolks until well mixed, add the water to the yolks and then stir into the whites. Pour into a hot buttered omelet pan to which has been added a half a cupful of blanched almonds. Cook as usual, fold and pour over the omelet a hot maple sauce.

Ramekin Eggs.—Butter small ramekins and drop an egg into each, season well and cover with cream; bake in a moderate oven until the egg is set. Serve garnished with parsley.

Ragout of Mutton.—Cut cold roast or boiled mutton into inch pieces. Take one tablespoonful of butter, add one tablespoonful of flour, one-half pint of stock, season with salt, pepper, three drops of tabasco sauce, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a pinch of asafoetida. Add the mutton, heat to the boiling point, then add one tablespoonful of orange juice and one tablespoonful of currant jelly. Serve hot.

Fried Onion Slices.—Cut good-size onions in half-inch slices and cover with cold water for an hour to chill. Drain and wipe dry, then fry in deep fat, drain, sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve as a garnish to steak.

Orange Puffs.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter, add a cupful of sugar, two beaten eggs, one-half cupful of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Flavor with orange and serve with:

Yellow Sauce.—Beat two eggs until very light, add one cupful of sugar gradually and continue beating, flavor with the grated rind of an orange and one-half cupful of orange juice.

SMART COMPOSE FOR SPRING; OMBRE AND BASKET WEAVE

ALMOST every plaited skirt has a jacket, accompaniment, which accounts for the youthfulness of the silhouette these days. Not only is this two-piece combination developed in a strictly tailored way, but it is particularly accomplished through a soft gracefully feminized styling.

Seldom are two jackets alike in the new models, proving that "variety is the spice of life" in the realm of clothes as elsewhere. Some jackets are collared, others are not; many are is perhaps as wise, if not the wisest investment one can make. Consider the fate of the dainty Easter frock—without the accompaniment of a time-ly cloth topcoat, what's the answer? Not only during spring's capricious weather is a modish long coat a "friend in need and indeed," but it does not outlive its usefulness the whole summer through.

There is this to be said of the new coat styles—they are not only practical but they accent an exquisite re-sleeveless, others are sleeved to the wrist, some fasten this way, others that, according to fashion's whim.

The girlish frock in the picture is typical of the trend of the mode. In creating this attractive two-piece model, the stylist has expended quite a collection of leading ideas. First of all, there's the compose theme—skirt of one color, jacket of another. The flat collarless neckline so popular in the advance styles, adds to the modernism of the jacket. To fasten the jacket or blouse over to one side, is considered the proper thing, too. That's why this little jacket reflects the surplice movement, with the addition of a few buttons to preserve a neat semi-tailored effect.

There is really no end to the varied interpretations of the jacket costume this season. Fabrics for the jacket cover a scope from chiffon to velvefinement of materials, marked with painstaking workmanship and subtle colorings.

Loosely woven basket-cloth in perfected colorings is a likable material for this season. As to the making up of this fabric the shimpler the more effective is the prevailing sentiment, a fact to which the coat to the right in the picture bears striking testimony. In the rounded corners at the neckline one sees a vitally new style-point. A bit of ombre fur for collar and cuffs adds charming finesse. If one is seeking the very latest in the way of a spring coat then by all means choose basket cloth in beige or any neutral tint. For summer the all-white basket cloth is foretold.

The mode is also high-lighting lovely blended ombre weaves, a decorative note being insets of solid colored cloth, as shown in the styling of the teen. It is a fact, the sheer jacket suit, usually tailored of georgette, is the dernier cri from Paris, and as for velveteen Jaquettes, see them in every color at any fashionable outdoor event. Recent imports feature plaid taffeta jackets with cloth skirts, also it is expected that short jackets in solid colors will be worn over one-piece crepe-print frocks.

Smartly styled seasonable full length cloth coat for early spring coat to the left in the picture. Narrow belts add much to the youthfulness of the silhouette.

A very new and clever mode is the cashmere coat having trimmings of plaid taffeta instead of fur. There is even a plaid taffeta boutonniere to give an added touch of color.

Real snakeskin trimming for cloth coats is the latest sensation.

PETER'S LESSON IN TRUST

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 14:22-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be of good cheer. It is I; be not afraid.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Trusts Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Helping Savior.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Peter Failed.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ the Ever-Present Helper.

The storm-tossed disciples on the sea at night are an example of the struggling followers of the Lord in the darkness of the present age, as they are tossed by the tempests of the evil one.

I. The Disciples on the Storm-Tossed Sea (vv. 22-24).

1. They are sent across the sea by Christ (v. 22).

"Jesus constrained His disciples to get into a ship." Doubtless His reason for this was to keep them from entanglement in the movement of the people to make Him King, for in John 6:14, 15, it is shown that the people were so excited by the feeding of the 5,000 that they were about to make Him King by force.

2. Christ dismisses the multitudes (v. 22).

This may be taken as typical of His rejection by the nation whose rulers had already rejected Him.

3. Christ praying alone in the mountain (v. 23).

Temptation to earthly honor and power had come to Him, therefore He went to the Father in prayer for relief and strength. The need of prayer is greatest at such times. According to Mark 6:48 He saw from the mountain the disciples toiling on the storm-tossed sea.

II. Jesus Walking on the Sea (vv. 25-27).

1. It was in the fourth watch of the night (v. 25).

He did not come to them immediately, but waited till almost dawn. However, it was the darkest part of the night. Their physical danger was great, but no doubt their mental perplexity was greater. They knew that the Lord had sent them, but why should they be in such straits if He sent them? The stormy sea is no evidence that the disciple is not in the Lord's appointed way.

2. The disciples alarmed at His coming (v. 26).

At the sight of Him they cried out for fear. They said: "It is a spirit." It was the coming of their best friend to deliver them from danger.

3. Jesus' words of comfort and good cheer (v. 27).

In the midst of their distress they heard the Master's words, "Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid." This changed their fear to joy.

III. Peter Walking on the Sea (vv. 28, 29).

1. Peter's request.
As soon as Peter recognized the voice of Jesus he cried: "Bid me come to thee on the water" (v. 28).

2. Jesus' response (v. 29).

At the Lord's "come," Peter left the ship and walked on the water. While he kept his eyes on the Lord he walked on the waves. His faith linked him with the divine power and was thus upheld. Vital faith in Jesus Christ will enable the disciple to outlive the storms of life.

IV. Peter Sinking (v. 30).

He took his eyes off the Lord and placed them upon the raging sea. This separated him from the divine power. We should learn to fix our eyes upon the Lord instead of upon our circumstances. Failure will surely follow if we give consideration to our circumstances and our own ability to master them.

V. Christ Rescuing Peter (v. 31).

When Peter began to sink he did the sensible thing. He cried out: "Lord, save me." Immediately Jesus stretched forth His hand and caught him. His salvation from death at the bottom of the sea was the result of the Lord taking hold of him. Jesus Christ in the incarnation was the divine hand reaching forth to rescue a sinking world. The significance of the expression "caught him" is made clear in Hebrews 2:16. It is there declared that Jesus took not upon Himself the nature of angels but took upon Himself the seed of Abraham. The same Greek word occurs in verse 31 of this lesson. We should understand from this that the eternal Son of God did not come in the form of a man in order to show man the way to God, but identified Himself with man through incorporation with Him. He came, not as an example, but as a Savior.

Workers and Machinery

"The remarkable efficiency of the American industrial worker is due largely to the heavy investment in labor-saving machinery that has been made to aid him," C. D. Morris of the Western railways' committee on public relations told members of the Winnetka (Ill.) Rotary club. "Behind every industrial worker in the United States there is an average investment of $4,000, and behind every rail worker in the country there is a $12,000 average investment."

Fatal Slip

Lloyd Nosler had just gotten married and came home to find his wife in tears. She confessed that hanging pictures and drapes was quite beyond her. "The walls are too hard," she wailed.

Lloyd tried to console her. "There, there, sweetheart, these walls are not a bit harder than any others, but really, you can't drive nails into any wall with a banana."

ORLAND

ORLAND M. E. NOTES, Elmer L. Setterlund, pastor. Friday April 15th is Good Friday and there will be, consequently no moving picture on this evening. Friday, April 22nd.

"Subway, Sadie"

Sunday, April 10th--

Bible School at 9:30 a. m.

Morning worship at 10:30 a. m.

"Worship is the practice which most characteristically distinguishes man from the brute". How far have you gone from the mere animal, impulsive life-testing it from the standard of worship? Our community has three churches and offers to all an opportunity to express worship according to their tastes. Avail your self of this privilege.

Evening service at 7:30.

The second set of pictures in "The Crisis in the Life of Christ". This evening we will consider the third crisis by means of colored masterpieces by the great artists.

The climax will be the 4th and 5th crises which will be given on Easter Sunday Evening. Do not miss these opportunities.

Despite the almost impassable roads our services were well attended last Sunday. However, we are aiming to make Easter Sunday a Rally Day in all departments of the church.

The day will begin with the Easter exercises given by the Sunday school at the usual Sunday school hour -- 9:30. This will be followed immediately by regular morning worship on Easter Sunday morning.

The evening will give the climax to the life of Christ -- the 4th and 5th crises given in stereopticon pictures.

Passion week services will be held from April 11th to the 16th in which we co-operate with the churches of Palos Park and Worth. Definite announcement as to where services will be held each night will be given next week. Do not miss them.

There is still considerable illness among our members and constituents. Illness again has invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Creer.

The many friends of Mr. Haus, conductor of the Wabash suburban train are glad to see him back at work on the train once more after a long illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell have returned from their winter sojourn at Long Beach, California.

PALOS PARK

At a meeting of the school trustees of Palos at the residence of the school treasurer, Mr. Thomas Quinn on Monday evening, a petition was presented requesting that over 1100 acres be detached from School District 120 and attached to Dist. 118. As the hearing developed it was shown by Mr. Cowan that this would deprive Dist. 120 of enough finances to make the continuation of the school possible and that the petition included land occupied by the school of Dist. 120.

Mr. Cowan contended that the signers of this petition could not have known the condition of Dist. 120 (without sufficient funds or without a school house) but Mr. Christ Munch, president of Dist. 120 School Board protested that it was a most unjust petition as it would deprive the remaining children of Dist. 120 a building in which to attend school. The school trustee, Wm. McCauley realized the position taken by Mr. Munch to be a just one and denied the petition, but suggested a compromise which was then effected and resulted in that part of Dist. 120 which is in side the village incorporated lines. He added to Dist. 118 about 160 acres. Mrs. Geo. B. Ward and Mrs. McLeron Christie assured the trustees that they had fully explained all this to the signers, and Mr. Cowan stated he had lost his faith in human kindness.

BANKERS EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION TRUSTEES

John H. Puelicher, former president of the American Bankers Association, has been named chairman of the board of trustees of the American Bankers Association Educational Foundation for which $500,000 has been pledged by the bankers to provide for scholarships and research in economics in colleges throughout the country. The other trustees are Leonard P. Ayers, Vice-President Cleveland Trust Company; Stephen L. Miller, Educational Director American Institute of Banking; Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, New York; George E. Roberts, Vice-President National City Bank, New York; Francis H. Sisson, Vice-President Guaranty Trust Company, New York; Evans Woolen, President Fletcher Savings & Trust Company, Indianapolis; W. Espey Albright, Deputy Manager American Bankers Association, Secretary.

The banks of Washington, Pa., believe in giving the pupils of the public schools simple and practical information in regard to banking practices as a matter of education. Talks were made during the year to grade and high school students by representatives of the banks.

Hermit's Cells Remain

The mountains near the city of Jericho, says one who explored many of them, "are absolutely honeycombed by the cells of ancient anchorites and hermits from top to bottom." Some of these contain frescoes and inscriptions of much interest, dating back to the earliest years of the Christian era.

Sandalwood

Sandalwood is used in ring and handkerchief boxes, and for the sticks of fans. Its delicate fragrance has made it extremely popular among women who dislike ordinary perfumes.

Found in Tobacco Leaves

Tobacco leaves when submitted to chemical analysis yield nicotine, which is its most characteristic constituent; albumin, a gluten-like substance; gum, resin, malic and citric acids, and a large amount of inorganic constituents, 100 parts of the dry leaf yielding from about 19 to 27 per cent of ash, in which potash, lime and silica preponderate.

OAK LAWN

OAK LAWN STANDARD SCHOOL

W. SIMMONS, Principal.

Our pupils are preparing for the preliminary spelling contest which will be held at school on Tuesday April 5th. Winners in the preliminary contest will receive badges which will admit them to the township contest which will be held at Worth at a later date.

Wilbert Harnew, Frank Triezenberg Florence Griede and Mr. Simmons attended the juvenile farmers institute at the Art Institute, Chicago, on Wednesday March 23.

Farmers in our community are busy planting their early crops such as onions etc. Let's hope that we do not get a late freeze this year.

The big Woodman Minstrel was a great success. Over 500 tickets were collected at the door but we have not learned the exact amount of the proceeds owing to the fact that reports have not been received from all ticket salesman. New applications have been received and we see all prospects for the growth of our Woodman camp.

Our people are now having to detour around 95th St. owing to the fact that it has been closed for re-construction. We cannot complain about detour when we think of the splendid road we shall have when the work is finished. Bridges are now under construction to the corner of 95th street and 64th ave.

Mr. Ole Johnson has recently purchased the restaurant from Mr. Hovey in Oak Lawn. We wish him success in his new business.

Mr. Steinwex has recently moved back in our district from District 123 and Annie is now back in our school. He has built a new home to replace the one recently destroyed by fire.

Master Bobby Stevens is convalescing from an attack of measles.

Mrs. Alma Tieberg is the possessor of a beautiful Atwater Kent Radio, Hoffman & Larson being the distributors.

Little Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pfeiffer is quite sick with a mastoid ailment.

Mr. W. W. Coulam has returned to his home in Pioneer, Ohio after a pleasant visit with his sisters, Mesdames Law and Cramer.

Mr. Wm. Ronlo our efficient tax collector spent Monday at the Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank, meeting his friends with all their money.

Everybody is getting the spring fever, when they happen to glance at the H. N. Behrend General store and see the wonderful bargains in garden implements they hate to resist, yet they are lacking in going to work.

Miss Iona Peletici is sojourning in Fort Meyers Florida for a few weeks.

Cornelius Terspra, our able carpenter, is building a new garage for Mr. Frank Yore.

Mr. Maurice Funt, of Fairmont West Virginia, is visiting at the Skinner home.

Mr. Peter Barkos is very sick with an infection of the face. Dr. Schussler is the attending physician.

Mr. Warren McFarlane is doing nicely. We are very glad as Mr. McFarlane is a very good citizen.

Mrs. Wills Dairs who is at the Post Graduate Hospital is much improved.

Mrs. Violet Stevens, clerk at the Oak Lawn Drug Store, is quite ill. Mr. I. N. Empie, clerk at the drug store is moving from Worth to our town.

The Rev. Earl F. Collins and family of Naperville, Ill., visited his mother, Mrs. Collins, on Wednesday of the past week.

We are pleased to state that Mr. George Piper our "expert garage man" is a candidate for village trustee. Mr. Piper is a product of this locality and is worthy of the office which he seeks.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Wm. Little, a prosperous and good citizen of Worth.

The Oak Lawn Community House has been purchased by the Holland Congregation and will be remodeled and used as a place of worship. The consideration was $1900.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Micheal Hartman spent Tuesday at the home of their son in Mt. Forest, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Martin and family are motoring to New York this week to be gone for two weeks.

WHAT THE FEDERAL RESERVE
HAS DONE FOR BUSINESS

What the Federal Reserve System has done for business is summed up in these points: It has (1) given business greater confidence in the ability of the banks to care for credit needs; (2) introduced an elastic currency and eliminated money panics; (3) eliminated extreme seasonal fluctuations in rates of interest; (4) brought business safely through the war and post-war crises; (5) saved millions of dollars to business through its efficient system for check collection; (6) made the gold reserve more effective as a basis for credit extension in times of extraordinary demand; (7) aided in the financing of foreign and domestic trade by developing a discount market for acceptances; (8) provided a means for handling huge financial operations of the government without interference with business; (9) aided in the re-establishment of the gold standard abroad; (10) given us an experienced banking organization which will assist us in meeting the future exigencies of business at home and abroad with courage and confidence.

Some Train on

Rock Island

A train of freight cars 200 miles long would be an unheard of novelty in railroading, and yet the Rock Island Lines on March 18, moved sufficient cars to make a "string" of that length had they all been coupled together in one train. It was the largest movement of freight cars ever handled by the Rock Island in one day, and aggregated 24,015 cars, of which 13,935 were loaded, and 10,080 were empties. Of the total loads, 7,978 went by fast freight, traveling in some cases at passenger train schedule. The heaviest movement of freight cars on the Rock Island prior to the above record was on June 27, 1923, when 23,884 cars were handled. This later occurred, however, during the cantaloupe season when the shipment of this fruit from the Imperial Valley was well under way.

ILLINOIS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Illinois Chamber of Commerce
Three hundred and thirty-three separate kinds of industries, established in the United States, are listed in the records of the United States government. Out of this 333 industries, the same records show, 310 are now operative in Illinois.

That is 93 per cent.
As a result of a survey just completed by the research department of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, carrying the report even farther, some very remarkable and startling facts have been developed. This survey is the first of its kind ever completed for any state. Here are a few of the main points it has brought out:

Illinois stands first in thirty-six industries; second in forty-nine industries; third in thirty-nine industries; fourth in thirty-one industries; and fifth in twenty-one industries! In other words, Illinois stands first, second, third, fourth or fifth in 176 of the 333 industries reporting to the United States government for commercial census! That is 53 per cent!

Credit Not Johnson's

When Doctor Johnson's "Rambler" was first published, the sale was decidedly disappointing. In fact the only paper, curious as it may seem in the light of his reputation today, which might be said to have been popular, was No. 97—the only one Doctor Johnson did not write. This paper, says the Market for Exchange, was said to have been written by Samuel Richardson.

The Muse

THE BLACKBIRD

By Louella Storey

The blackbird's song is considered best,

Because he sings sweeter than any of the rest;

Although his color is only dull black,

No other bird can get the knack

Of his beautiful song,

Even though they try ever so long.

Except the mocking bird so wise,

Who can sing most anything if he tries.

THE BATTLE

By Wanda Hall

A clash of armor, a flash of steel,
There rages the battle, fierce and real.

The red coats and yankies, the young and old;

And many brave heroes are dead and cold.

Still rages the battle, the reds are still strong

But they are fast weakening, they cannot last long.

Then back they retreated, not in fear, but by force,

The yankies are winning, by fair play, of course.

At last it is over, the yankies have won;

The red coats won hushon for they did not run

But fought to the finish, brave true, without fright,

For family and home, and what they thought right.

THE STREAM

Babbling, trickling, shooting, ebbing

So goes the little stream;

The pebbles are smooth and round as glass,

And the sun on it's clear waters gleam.

There it rushes, there it sparkles,

There it shoots under a bridge;

See it go now fast, now slow,

Then forms a falls on a ridge.

Babble, babble, little stream,

On to the foaming sea.

A brook is the happiest thing in the world,

It's always filled with glee.

THE RESCUE.

By Robert Liess

When the sun came up in the morning

There was a loud cry of warning,

The Blue Jay swooped down on the nest

Where the mother Robin was taking a rest

He hit her with his beak

She then began to scream and shriek,

Father Robin who was very near

Came quickly and rescued his little dears.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

Parts of his ears were gone, and as he drew nearer I saw that his face was criss-crossed by innumerable tiny scars. When he raised his hand in blessing the Indians I realized that two fingers were missing, and those which were left were twisted and gnarled as by fire.

"Whom have we here?" he called in a loud, harsh voice.

"Two prisoners, reverend sir," replied Murray. "English spies caught at Jagara by the vigilance of Monsieur de Veulle."

"Are they heretics?" demanded the priest.

"I fear I have never conversed with Master Ormerod concerning his religious beliefs," said Murray whimsically. The priest peered closely at me.

"Well, sir," he asked brusquely, "are you a son of the true faith?"

"Not the one you refer to, sir," I said.

"And this savage here?"

"He believes, quite devoutly, I should say, in the gods of his race."

The Jesuit looked and unlocked his fingers nervously.

"I fear, monsieur, that you will suffer torment at the hands of my poor children here," he said. "Will you not repent before it is too late?"

"But will you stand by and see your children torture an Englishman in time of peace?" I asked.

"Peace?" he rasped. "There is no peace—there can be no peace—between England, the harlot nation, and holy France. France follows her destiny, and her destiny is to rule America on behalf of the Church."

"Yet peace there is," I insisted.

"I refuse to admit it. We know no peace here. We are at war, endless war, physically, spiritually, mentally, with England. If you come amongst us, you do so at your bodily peril. But—and the challenge left his voice—and was replaced by a note of pleading, soft and compelling—"It may be monsieur, that in your bodily peril you have achieved the salvation of your soul. Repent, I urge you, and though your body perish your soul shall live."

Murray and De Veulle stirred restlessly during this harangue, but the savages were so silent you could hear the birds in the trees. I was interested in this man, in his fanatic sincerity, his queer conception of life.

"But if I repented, as you say," I suggested, "would not you save my body?"

His eyes burned with contempt.

"Would you drive a bargain with God?" he cried. "For shame! Some may tolerate that, but I never will! What matters your miserable body! It has transgressed the rights of France. Let it die! But your soul is immortal; save that, I conjure you! Death? What is death? And what matters the manner of death? Look at me, monsieur."

He fixed my gaze on each of his infirmities.

"I am but the wreck of a man. These poor, ignorant children of the wilderness have worked their will with me, and because it was best for me God permitted it. Torture never hurt any man. It is excellent for the spirit. It will benefit you. If you must die—"

His voice trailed into nothingness. De Veulle interposed.

"Reverend father," he said, "I have a letter for you from Jacques Pourier. The rivermen would like you to give them a mass Sunday. 'Tis a long—"

"Give me the letter," he cried eagerly.

"Ah, that is good reading! Sometimes I despair for my sons—aye, more than for the miserable children of the wilderness. But now I know that a seed grows in the hearts of some that I have doubted. I shall go gladly."

De Veulle winked at Murray as the priest limped away.

"I must send Jacques a barrel of brandy for this," he remarked; "but our Cahnugas would be in the sulks if they could not celebrate the Moon feast, and they stand in such fear of the worthy Hyacinthe that they would never risk his wrath."

"The Moon feast?" exclaimed Murray. "True, I had forgotten. Well, 'twill be an excellent introduction to the customs of the savages for our friend the intruder."

"'Twill make a great impression upon him," laughed De Veulle. "In fact, upon both of them. I have a surprise for our Iroquois captive as well. The Mistress of the False Faces awaits them."

He murmured some orders to our guards, kicked me out of his path and sauntered through the gateway beside Murray.

With Boling in active supervision and Tom hanging greedily on the flanks of the crowd, we were hustled through the clearing, past the chapel and an intervening belt of woodland, into a natural amphitheater on the far side of the village, where a background of dark pines waited in a wide surface of hard-beaten, grassless ground. Two stakes stood ready, side by side, in the center, and our captors tore off our tattered clothes and lashed us to these with whips of joy.

So we stood, naked and bound, ankle, knee, thigh, chest and armpit, whilst the sun, setting behind the village, flooded the inferno with mellow light and an army of fiends, men, women and children, pranced around us. For myself, I was dazed and fearful, but Ta-wan-ne-ars again showed me the better road.

"The Keepers scream like women," he shouted, in order to make himself heard. "Have you never taken captives before? You are women. We scorn you. Do you know what has become of the seven warriors Murray sent to pursue us on the Great Trail?"

Silence prevailed.

"Yes, there were seven of them," glibed Ta-wan-ne-ars. "And there were three of us. And where are they? I will tell you. Cahnuga dogs, Shawendadie dogs, Huron dogs. Crawl closer on your bellies while I tell you."

"Their scalps hang in the lodge of Ta-wan-ne-ars—seven scalps of the Keepers who could not fight against real men. The scalps of seven who called themselves warriors and who were so rash that they tried to fight three."

A howl of anger answered him.

"Begin the torment," yelled Boling. Tom drew a wicked knife and ran toward us, his yellow eyes aflame. But a squat Cahnuga chief pushed him back.

"They are to be held for the Moon feast," he proclaimed. "See, the Mistress comes. Stand back, brothers."

The sound of a monotonous wailing filled the air, joining itself with the evening breeze that sighed in the branches of the pines behind us. The crowd of savages drew away from us in sudden awe.

"Ga-go-sa Ho-nun-as-tase-ta," they muttered to each other.

"What do they say?" I asked Ta-wan-ne-ars.

"The Mistress of the False Faces is coming," he replied curtly.

"And who is she?"

"The priestess of their devilish brotherhood."

Out from the long bark building wound a curious serpentine procession of men in fantastic head-masks, who danced along with a halting step. As they danced they sang in the weird monotone we had first heard. And behind them all walked slowly one without a mask, a young girl of upright figure, her long black hair cascading about her bare shoulders. Her arms were folded across her breast. She wore only the short ga-ka-ah, or kilt, with moccasins on her feet.

The breath whistled in Ta-wan-ne-ars' nostrils as his chest heaved against his bonds, and I turned my head in amazement. The expression on his face was compounded of such demonic ferocity as I had seen there once before—that, and incredulous affection.

"What is it?" I cried.

He did not heed me. He did not even hear me. His whole being was focused upon the girl whose ruddy bronze skin gleamed through the masses of her hair, whose shapely limbs ignored the beat of the music which governed the motions of her attendants.

The procession threaded its way at leisurely pace through the throngs of Indians, the girl walking as unconcerned as if she were alone, her head held high, her eyes staring unseeing before her.

"Ga-go-sa Ho-nun-as-tase-ta," murmured the savages, bowing low.

The False Faces drew clear of the crowd, and danced solemnly around us. They paid us no attention, but when they had strung a complete circle around the stakes they faced inward and stopped, each one where he stood. For the first time the priestess, or Mistress as they called her, showed appreciation of her surroundings. She walked into the ring of masks and took up her position in front of us and between our stakes. She had not looked at us.

"Bow down, O my people," she chanted in a soft voice that was hauntingly sweet. "The False Faces are come amongst you, for it is again the period of our rule, and I, their Mistress, am to give you the word."

"Behold, the old moon is dying, and a new moon will be born again to us. The Powers of Evil, the Powers of Good and the Powers of Life are come together for the creation."

"Thrice fortunate are you that you recognize the rule of So-a-ka-ga-gwa (the moon—the light of the night)," for it brings you well-being, now and hereafter in the Land of Souls. Moreover, it brings you captives, and your feast will be graced by their sufferings."

She turned to face us, arms flung wide in a graceful gesture. I thought that Ta-wan-ne-ars would burst the things that bound him. His powerful chest expanded until they stretched.

"Ga-ha-no!" he sobbed.

She faltered, and her hands locked together involuntarily between her breasts. A light of apprehension dawned in her eyes, and for a moment I thought there was a trace of something more.

"Ga-ha-no!" pleaded Ta-wan-ne-ars. But she regained the mastery of herself, and a mocking smile was his answer.

"They are no ordinary captives who will consecrate our feast," she continued her recitative.

"For one is a chief of the Iroquois and a warrior whose valor will resist the torment with pride. And the other is a white chief whose tender flesh will yield great delight and whose screams will give pleasure in our ears."

"O my people, this is the Night of Preparation. When An-da-ka-ga-gwa (the sun—the Light of the Day), the husband of So-a-ka-ga-gwa, retires to rest to mourn his dead wife and make ready for the new one he will take tomorrow, you must retire to your lodges, and put out your fires, and let down your hair."

"For in the night the spirits of Hahn-ka-o-no-geh (hell—the dwelling-place of evil) will come to hold communion with their servants, the False Faces, and they will be hungry for your souls."

"And this is my warning to you, O my people. Heed the warning of Ga-go-sa Ho-nun-as-tase-ta."

"And on the next night we will celebrate the Moon feast, and I will dance the torture dance. And we will tear the hearts out of our enemies' breasts and grow strong from their sufferings."

She tossed her arms above her head, and the ring of False Faces burst into their high-pitched, nasal chant, and resumed the hesitant dancing step, their horrible masks wobbling from side to side, their painted bodies, naked save for the breech-clout, posturing in rhythm.

Their Mistress summoned the squat Cahnuga chief, who seemed to be especially charged with our safe-keeping.

"You will unbind the captives from the stakes and place them in the Council-House," she said coldly. "If they are left out in the night, my brothers and sisters, in the aids of Hahn-go-ate-geh will devour them. Feed them well, so that they will be strong to resist their torment, and tie them securely, and place a guard of crafty warriors over them. If they escape, you shall be the sacrifice at the Moon feast."

The chief groveled before her.

"The commands of the Ga-go-sa Ho-nun-as-tase-ta shall be obeyed," he promised. "And I pray you will hold off the Spirits of Evil tonight, for sometimes they have been overbold and have snatched our people from their lodges."

"You are safe this time if you heed my words," she answered, "for you have secured a sacrifice which will be very pleasing to So-a-ka-ga-gwa and her friends." (For this and other conversations I am indebted to Ta-wan-ne-ars, who translated them for me afterward.—H. O.)

Then she came up quite close to us. She looked at me with frank curiosity, and particularly my hair, which was brown. But most of her attention was bestowed upon Ta-wan-ne-ars.

"So you remember me?" she said in a hard voice and speaking in the Seneca dialect.

"I remember you, Ga-ha-no," he answered. "But I see you do not remember me."

"Oh, well enough," she returned. "But I am no longer an ordinary woman. I am the Mistress of the False Faces."

"And of a French snake," he added bitterly.

Her eyes flashed.

"I am not a squaw, which is what I should have been had you and my stupid father had your way with me!"

Ta-wan-ne-ars shook his head sadly. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Bargains Risky in Fertilizers

Choice Should Be Made on Basis of Cost of Plant Food Contained.

Hunting for bargains is poor policy when it comes to buying fertilizers, says Dr. E. L. Worthen, soils specialist of the New York State College of Agriculture, Ithaca.

The choice should be made on the basis of the cost of the plant food contained and not on the ton price of the fertilizer, he suggested. This necessitates an understanding of the guaranteed analysis and in addition the ability to analyze the price in terms of plant food, he said.

Co-operative Buying Best.

Farmers will be able to get plant food at the lowest figure through the co-operative buying of fertilizer materials in car lots, according to Doctor Worthen.

Much publicity has been given the last few years to the economy of high analysis fertilizers. It is true that of the factory-mixed fertilizers those classing as high analysis are in general a better buy than the mixture falling in the low analysis group. Invariably a worthwhile saving can be made by shifting from low analysis to high analysis mixed fertilizers. In changing from a 2-8-2 to a 3-12-3 mixture, the same amount of plant food can be secured and a saving of 20 per cent, or one-fifth, made in the fertilizer expenditure.

Not Necessarily Good Buy.

However, a fertilizer is not necessarily a good buy because it is high in analysis. For example, the 2-12-2 and 2-16-2 analysis used extensively in certain states for corn and other grain crops cannot be justified, because the 2 per cent of ammonia and the 2 per cent of potash are prohibitive in cost. The same amount of money invested in acid phosphate or in rock phosphate would give better returns. A saving of nearly 8 per cent can be made by purchasing a 5-10-5 instead of the 4-8-4.

Where mixed fertilizers are used, home mixing offers a saving over any grade of factory-mixed goods. Home mixtures can be made for from $5 to $10 a ton less than the same grade of factory-mixed fertilizer costs the farmer.

To a considerable extent fertilizer materials such as acid phosphate, nitrate of soda, sulfate of ammonia, and muriate of potash can be used without mixing. Plant food can be secured at a lower figure in materials of this kind than in mixed goods.

Winter Is Best Time to

Prune All Fruit Trees

It is best to prune fruit trees during the dormant season any time after the leaves have fallen. Pruning done then has an invigorating effect on the trees, whereas an equal amount of pruning done in the summer weakens them, because it deprives the trees of foliage before that foliage has an opportunity to contribute to the fruit growth of the tree, according to Prof. Joseph Oskamp at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

It effects from pruning when the wood is frozen are usually considered unimportant because the wood is seldom injured from it.

The way the cut is made has a direct bearing on the healing of the wound. If a stub is left, decay is likely to start before the wound heals, so branches should be cut flush. Small wounds need no protection, but large ones should be painted with a thick white lead and oil paint. Here, too, the winter is most desirable, because during the summer the caustic action of the paint may hinder the healing of the wound.

Many different kinds of tools are available for pruning, but the most satisfactory work is done with those that are strong and sharp, regardless of the kind.

FARM NOTES

The best way to save labor is to increase soil fertility.

Clean the small grain seed before planting—it will insure better crops.

A coat of whitewash is an effective sanitary measure, when applied to the dairy barn and poultry house.

Stop, thief! Soil erosion robs American farms of $200,000,000 every year—and farmers look on calmly.

When sweet clover is seeded with oats, it is not usually rank enough to furnish much pasture until late in August.

Two standard treatments for the control of seed-borne diseases of the potato are the corrosive sublimate treatment and the hot formaldehyde treatment.

Copper carbonate protects stored grain from attacks by weevils. Rats and mice will not eat treated seed if there is untreated grain in the storehouse on which they can feed.

Burning dry pasture grass to produce early growth does more damage than good. The early growth may be somewhat more luxuriant on the burned area, but the total yield for the season is usually less than on the unburned areas.

Curious Old Church in Heart of London

Porters and clerks at Denmark Hill railway station, South London, often work to the accompaniment of hymns sung lustily by a congregation in a disused waiting room next to the booking office. The Mystical Church of the Comforter is one of London's most curious churches. Babies are baptized in a room that was once only used by impatient travelers waiting for their trains; funeral services are read in it and a marriage has been solemnized. This church has been in existence for about six years. One end of the former waiting room has been transformed by an altar painted white and surrounded by the seven colors of the rainbow. Seven steps lead up to the altar, and at the side are two pillars representing beauty and strength. Everything is done by symbols in this remarkable church, and the badge worn by members is a dove, standing in a circle with a seven-leaved branch in its beak. The leader and founder of the church is a woman with the official title of "messenger."

Dolls Now Live Longer

With the cessation of manufacture of the kinds of dolls that had fragile heads the life of the average doll has been increased from a few days to a period that may run into years. Inquiry by the manufacturers among children developed the fact that they prefer soft-bodied dolls because they cuddle easier. Yankee ingenuity was applied.

Batteryless Flashlight

Army experts are experimenting with a batteryless flashlight. They have constructed a flashlight which contains its own generator. The motive power that runs the generator is supplied by a spring that winds up like a clock. A single winding will furnish a continuous light for three minutes.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Vote Recount Begun

Mr. Anderson said that he believed all witnesses to date had testified to the truth in all good faith and that the petitioners had fulfilled the judge's demand that they at least show him some suspicion of fraud and that he felt an order for a recount was forthcoming.

Judge Ralph C. Austin handled down his opinion Wednesday morning and it was that he would not enter an order for a general recount but that he would offer the ballots of the 14th precinct as evidence to be recounted and see if it substantiates the testimony of witnesses on the stand. If any material gain is made he will then order the ballots of the first precinct as evidence and see what they offer. If by that time he is satisfied that the election may be reversed he may order a recount of the whole county.

The attorneys for Mr. Weston said they would like to adjourn until Wednesday afternoon so they could talk the matter over with their clients and the attorneys for Mr. Markgraf asked they be given until Thursday morning. This was granted.

Each side is to select a teller to keep track of the count and the court reporter will keep count for the court. It is practically assured at this time that the ballots of the 14th precinct will be opened and the tampering or purity of the ballot will be exposed to the people of Will County.

Eat Less and Live Longer, Says Lawyer

By W. W. O'BRIEN

(Noted Criminal Lawyer of Chicago.)

Business and professional men working under high nervous pressure do not live as long as men whose pursuits keep them out of doors and active. Examine the records of longevity and you will find that on the average the longest-lived men are soldiers, sailors and farmers, all vocations which tend to keep a man at his physical best.

Man, in general, rolls down the hill of life fastest when his figure is rotund. "Leanness and longevity" is a good axiom for business men to remember. If office workers would eat a little less, they would add years to their lives.

Overfeeding is as dangerous to adults as underfeeding is to children. Foods difficult to digest, or which overstimulate, should be avoided by persons whose work does not require any particular amount of physical exercise. Yet thousands of business men eat as much as or more than men who do manual labor. And, inevitably, nature rebels and sickness results.

Many of the country's foremost executives eat but two meals a day breakfast and dinner in the evening. They seek to keep the organs of the body from becoming clogged. Thousands of other business men confine themselves at noon to custards, puddings, soups and other sustaining dishes made with milk, or evaporated milk, which is milk in its most sterile form, from which 60 per cent of the water has been removed by evaporation. Such a diet is light and readily assimilated.

There is no more necessary lesson to be learned by the brain worker than how to keep well and healthy by proper attention to food habits.

Eat Way Through Corn Acres

(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Eating their way through almost four million acres of canned corn in the form of silage is the job American cattle, mostly dairy cows, accomplish every year, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. It has been estimated that they eat 96.9% of the vast amount of silage while of the small amount left, swine consume 2.2%, horses, 1.7% and sheep 1.1%. Very little silage is fed to poultry. All silage made on the farm is consumed on the farm because it is not a product that can be handled successfully through commercial channels.

Self-Knowledge

A well-known clergyman says every man should keep a diary so that he may know himself. The average man knows himself well enough to be certain that if he started a diary he wouldn't keep it up.

TINLEY PARK

Mrs. Charles Andres entertained friends in honor of her son Bernaiki's birthday, on April 1st. Bunco was played and an elaborate supper was served.

Those having birthdays last week: Henry Bettendhausen; Mrs. Sandage.

The activities of the athletic team of the Triangle Club are at a standstill, until the opening of the base ball season, and as many readers of the Bulletin are interested in this live wire club, we thought it a most fitting time to present the history of the Tinley Park Orchestra of the Triangle Club to the public. Mr. Marcell Veleta, the manager of this well organized band, consented to give an outline of its existence from the beginning to the present time. To Henry Boldt goes the honor of organizing this musical group. He played the violin, Peter Paron the saxophone, Wm. Stockman the drums, Mr. Veleta the banjo, and Miss Selma Brueggeman piano. Mr. Veleta says it surely was fun to listen to this music. What matter if they did play out of tune and out of time, every thing has its beginning and these boys are determined to see the orchestra idea to a finished finish and so they decided to take lessons and to get down to real hard practicing which they did to the great advancement of the orchestra. After a few months, Miss Brueggeman resigned as accompanist, Marvin Scheone taking her place at the piano. By this time the boys were doing fairly well.

Henry Boldt was playing the cornet and Merrill Bettendhausen had taken the drums and so they practiced faithfully and hard several more months, improving wonderfully in their work. So well was this done that they received several calls and made engagements for a number of special occasions. During these strenuous days of hard practice it was necessary to procure assistance in the piano accompanist work, so Miss Ethna Jochum kindly offered her services. The orchestra today would commend Miss Jochum upon her fine spirit and work which they more than appreciate.

At this time Mr. Boldt resigned as leader of the band and M. Veleta was unanimously elected manager and has held this office ever since. At the time of his election the orchestra changed its name to "Jack Val's Orchestra". This meant more practicing, harder work and real discipline to the extent that any player who failed to be present at practice ran the risk of losing his place in the band. The recent changes in line up is the addition of Edwin Hug, saxophone and clarinet player and Henry Boldt now plays the violin. The persistence in which this group of young men shown in their efforts to have a real honest to goodness orchestra in Tinley Park deserves the highest praise and the backing of every man and woman taxpayer and non-taxpayer of Tinley Park.

Some of the important engagements they have had are playing for the Firemen's dance at Matteson, Ill., Hamilton Park Woman's Club, Orland Girl's Club, Father Frances's church at Midlothian and on April 22nd they will "stunt their stuff" as they call it at the daughters of America ball held in the Masonic Temple at 64th and Green Streets. They definitely decided to change their name to the fanciful one of "Red Pirates" and by such will they be known. It's a live wire name quite fitting for the group of efficient young men that Tinley Park people are so proud of. Following is the list of members: The final combination: Marnell Veleta, manager, banjo tenor; Marvin Scheone, piano; Henry Boldt, violin; Edwin Hug, saxophone; Henry Aulwurm, cornet; Norman Edwards, trap drums.

Miss Selma Brueggeman was taken ill suddenly with appendicitis on Thursday last. She was taken to the Blue Island hospital where an operation was performed. She is doing as well as can be expected.

At the bunco party held at the Gift Shop Tuesday, Mrs. J. C. Andres won first prize and Mrs. Shumberg won consolation.

Louise Uthe is up and abouts since her sick spell.

John F. Boeyer has returned the past week from a trip to Palm Beach, Florida. He was seen in Chicago one day last week. Mr. Boeyer is employed by the International Harvester Co., as an interpreter of foreign languages and as guide for foreigners that visit the different plants of this company. It is said he can speak seven different languages.

The pupils of the upper room in the Tinley Park school made a splendid record in the preliminary spelling contest. Twenty-nine passed Miss McClaughry's test with an average of 96 or better. Mrs. Fulton had to pronounce 550 words before she was able to eliminate down to six pupils. Those who are to go to the township test are Ruth Funk, Mildred Nielsen, Earl Siemsen, Bernice Uzemack, Stella Goham and Bernice Rick.

We notice that Mrs. Christ Fink, Frankfort, Elizabeth D. Owen of New Lenox, Mrs. Lloyd L. Watson, of Matteson, Mrs. Henry Bush of Oak Forest, Mrs. Anna Gansberger and C. H. Macanley of Homewood and Elizabeth A. Heskett and Mrs. Frank Jaklich and Mrs. Herman Rathya of Oak Lawn are in the Chicago Tribune Flower Garden Contest. How about all the good gardeners in the vicinity of Tinley Park and Mokena why are they not in it?

Hay Cafeteria Service

(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Our hay crop furnishes one of the largest cafeteria services in existence, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Seventy-eight million tons, it is expected, will be produced in 1926, a large part of which will be consumed by cattle. According to figures put out by the Department of Agriculture, 51.4% of this amount will be eaten by cattle, 44.6% by horses and the remaining 3.8% by sheep. The amount of hay eaten by hogs is very slight, only a small fraction of one per cent of the alfalfa crop. As in the case of other feed crops, most of this hay is consumed right on the farm where it is grown.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON HOUSEHOLD BUDGETS

"Aunt Emmy," asked Helen, "won't you explain what is meant by a household budget? You said something the other day about budgets, but I don't seem clear in my mind about it."

"A budget is simply a plan," said Aunt Emmy. "You plan what you are going to do with your income. You divide your income systematically so that you can meet your needs. You lay aside a part of your income for rent, other parts for food, clothing, heat, light, telephone, recreation, savings and so on."

"How are you going to know how much you should spend for each thing—on rent for instance, Aunt?" asked Helen.

"Experts have studied the question carefully and have worked out budgets to suit every income. Of course, you can alter these typical budgets slightly to suit your particular needs. For example, the average budget that covers incomes of from $2,000 to $10,000 a year divides your income into six parts. Ten per cent for savings, twenty per cent for rent, twenty per cent for food, twenty per cent for what is called betterment and includes education, amusement, entertainment, books, music, sports; fifteen per cent for clothes and fifteen per cent for operating expenses."

"No matter how you change the other items you must not change the savings allowance—except to increase it. A great majority of men who reach sixty are dependent on relatives or charity. If they had saved only ten cents out of every dollar, they would not have been in that plight. There is nothing like money in the savings bank to help you through the emergencies that come in everybody's life. If everybody kept one year's income in the savings bank, much misery would be averted. If you always have enough money to see you through one year, you are pretty safe. Beyond that, it is wise to let your money accumulate until you have enough to buy some good securities. Your banker will advise you about the securities that suit your needs."

"But, Aunt Emmy, suppose you wanted to alter your budget?" inquired Helen. "How would you know how to do it? A young married couple might start on a certain budget and then, when they had children to feed and educate, they might want to change it."

"Well, my dear, if they were in doubt about their financial affairs, they could always consult their banker. That is why it is so good to establish friendly relations with a bank when you start out in life. Any banker will be glad to advise young people about making their money go farther."

"The Voice Returned"

THE "Great Blizzard" of 1888 had blocked railway traffic and disrupted mail and telegraph service. Through the drift-piled streets of Boston groups of men and women made their way to the public telephone stations, anxiously inquiring whether the long distance lines to New York were still in service.

"People did not want a message, they wanted to talk," runs a contemporary story. "They wanted to find out where the other party was, if he was alive, indeed.*It was the voice returned, the personal interview, that was especially valuable."

A telephone conversation is the meeting of mind with mind, heart with heart. Today there are no limits of distance to the interchange of thought that binds all parts of the country together. Created in response to America's needs, a network of 50,000,000 miles of wire has given nation-wide scope to the "voice returned."
